Laura Salmon M.Sc, RD; Traditional Diet Coordinator, First Nations Health Programs, Whitehorse General Hospital, Whitehorse, YT
Jennifer Eskes RD; Community Dietitian, Whitehorse General Hospital, Whitehorse, YT

Step out of the classroom and Do-it-yourself! Use the materials and user-manual provided create interactive displays, share them with peers and experience a hands-on training program for front-line diabetes workers. Culturally relevant and fun, this makeover of diabetes teaching provides a safe environment for participants to learn and teach others.

A2 Type 2 Diabetes Mellitus in Children and Youth of First Nation Origin: an Interprofessional Approach to Advancing Knowledge and Improved Care

Elizabeth Sellers MD, MSc; Associate Professor, Department of Pediatrics and Child Health, University of Manitoba, Winnipeg, MB

Julie Dexter RN, BN; Diabetes Nurse Educator, Diabetes Education Resource for Children and Adolescents, Winnipeg, MB

The Diabetes Education Resource for Children and Adolescents is an interprofessional team involved in prevention, care, education, advocacy and research related to type 2 diabetes in children and youth. Research highlights and clinical insights will inform a discussion on the future directions of clinical research in the prevention and management of type 2 diabetes in youth.

A3 Traditional Medicine and Culinary Pedagogy: A Community Determined Approach to Prevention and Treatment of Diabetes

Leslie Korn PhD, MPH, RPP; Director, Center for Traditional Medicine, Olympia, WA

Rudolph C. Ryser PhD; Executive Director, Center for World Indigenous Studies, Olympia, WA

Connie McCloud; Cultural Director, Puyallup Tribal Health Authority, Tacoma, WA

Nutrition trauma in indigenous communities is the loss of access to natural resources and traditional foods and medicines and results in community stress and dysregulation of glucose metabolism. This presentation provides specific traditional medicine methods used in the USA, Canada and Mexico that elevate community-determined approaches to revitalize traditional healing practices.

B1 Patient Wait Time Guarantees - Pilot Projects in Canada to Effect Change in Diabetes Care

Judy Watson; Senior Policy Advisor, Community Programs Directorate, First Nations and Inuit Health Branch, Health Canada, Ottawa, ON

Eugene Nicholas; Research and Policy Analyst, Health Secretariat, Assembly of First Nations, Ottawa, ON

The Government of Canada and the Assembly of First Nations have launched pilot projects in selected First Nations communities to test patient wait times in the area of prenatal care and diabetes. This presentation will describe the steps taken to engage communities, create tools and map community health care systems.

B2 Go Interactive - The Key to Prevention!

Lorene Gemmill McLean; Community Diabetes Prevention Worker Program Facilitator, Yellowquill College, Winnipeg, MB

Linda Green B.Ed.; Coordinator and Facilitator, Community Diabetes Prevention Worker Program, Yellowquill College, Winnipeg, MB

Participants are invited to participate in some of the interactive exercises and tools that have been utilized in the Yellowquill College Community Diabetes Prevention Worker program to encourage, motivate and build up the confidence and skill levels of community Diabetes workers through interactive, experiential learning activities.

B3 My Big Fat Diet

Jay Wortman, MD; Senior Medical Advisor, FINHB, Health Canada, Vancouver, BC

The members of Namgis First Nation in Alert Bay, BC were invited to eat a diet based on their traditional way of eating. Both traditional and modern foods were allowed as dieters were studied over a 12 month period. They lost weight, improved their cholesterol and blood sugar control while discontinuing medications for diabetes and blood pressure. The study was featured in the CBC television documentary, "My Big Fat Diet". The workshop will discuss the study and the science behind a diet low in carbohydrates and high in fat.

B4 A Lifegiving Medicine Wheel Walk

Cathryn Mandoka; Health Director, Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians (AIAI), London, ON

Darlene Arnault; Director, Primary Health Care Unit, Federation of Saskatchewan Indian Nations, Saskatoon, SK

Members of the AFN First Nations Diabetes Working Group will invite participants to join them in a walk around the "Life Giving Medicine Wheel." Participants will witness healthy lifestyles of the historic past where wellness prevailed and diabetes was non-existent. Participants will experience the journey of persons living with diabetes and share in a give-away of life-giving tools.
